

The Federal Communications Commission
445 12th Street, SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear The Federal Communications Commission,

Sir, America is facing an economical vacuum; limited F.O.L. production, Social Security configuration, and war expenditures. Excessive taxing on wireless cell-phone use, and or user level products that will make wireless communications more expensive for Americans is a mistake. Wireless communications increases the security in American communities by far. Anything from a car accident to a terrorist threat can be reported quicker now, more than ever. Our founding fathers would not be impressed with any element that would start a movement to increase the taxes on a product that nearly everyone can benefit from (tea). If you factor this tax into your budget you will become dependent on it; do the math. From what I have read, I urge you to consider plans like the "Fair Share Plan," and prevent non-corporate taxing on communications. Thank You Corey Gray

Sincerely,

Corey Gray
43 North High Street
Bridgton, Maine 04009